Whatever the agenda, Sanders sees diversity of viewpoints itself as crucial to our way of life. In a brochure announcing his "Media and Democracy" town meetings, he writes, "If just a few corporations are allowed to control both production and distribution of the news and programming across America, democracy itself is in danger." In a world in which cable companies, TV stations and local newspapers are all merged, "Millions of Americans will be receiving virtually all of their information from a single source," he points out.

Though she is also wary of "media consolidation," Lynch is more skeptical about championing the alternatives. "We have to be careful not to idealize independent ownership," she says. "Commercial pressures do not go away when you're individually owned. You don't suddenly have total freedom of expression, freedom from the marketplace. The homogeneity of the message is as much about commercial pressure as it is about corporate structure."

But Nichols hails the Green Mountain State as one of last bastions of media liberty. "Look at the Rutland Herald, a Pulitzer Prize-winning small newspaper. Vermont ain't perfect, but it's better than many places in the country. You still have a lot of locally owned operations. Things aren't so bad there."

Halfway around the globe, there's evidence of a movement to create a people's media. Nichols has spent time in New Zealand, which is "expanding the number of radio stations in the public sphere." He touts a station operated by the island nation's indigenous Maori people, and another "run by and for those under the age of 25."

In this corner of New England, "an individual state can have a lot of impact," Nichols adds. "You guys can really be part of a solution. Why not increase public funding for public radio or crate an all-news-all-the-time station? In the little state of Vermont, there is a lot you can do. If one place does it right, you can dramatically influence the rest of America."

Congressman Bernie Sanders, Robert McChesney and John Nichols weigh in on "The Media and Democracy" on Sunday, April 28, 7:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Church in Montpelier; and Monday, April 29, 7:30 p.m. at the CC Theater in Billings Student Center at the University of Vermont. A special free media workshop for teachers, and students and community members will be held on Monday at 4 p.m. in Waterman's Memorial Lounge at UVM.

IN RECOGNITION OF SENATOR ROY
M. GOODMAN

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 29, 2002

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to State Senator Roy M. Goodman, who was one of the most effective legislators ever to serve the East Side of Manhattan. Senator Goodman has devoted his career to making New York City a better place to live. His decision to retire from office has cost East Siders a remarkable leader and a renowned champion of the Arts.

A stalwart supporter of civic and community causes, Senator Goodman served 33 years in the State Senate. In recognition of his leadership skills, he was appointed the Senate's Deputy Majority Leader for Policy. During his tenure in Albany, more than 1,200 of the bills of which he was a sponsor became law.

Senator Goodman's major initiatives have included sponsorship of legislation to increase police patrols and toughen gun and ammunition controls; provide tax fairness for the owners of co-ops and condos; expand women's right to choose; increase protections against domestic violence; cut the state income and corporate taxes; provide better housing and tenant protection; protect children against abuse; combat discrimination; and expedite school construction. In addition, Senator Goodman was often chosen to be lead sponsor of the Mayor's proposals to increase state aid for New York City.

As the leading legislative advocate of the arts in New York State, he was Chairman of the Senate Special Committee on the Arts and Cultural Affairs. He is legendary for his success in obtaining state funding for New York's museums and cultural organizations. Senator Goodman was also appointed by President Bush and unanimously approved by the U.S. Senate as a member of the National Endowment for the Arts Council, on the basis of his distinguished service and eminence in the arts. In 1996, he was named Ambassador for the Arts by the National Endowment for the Arts in recognition of his unwavering support of the arts and cultural affairs.

From 1972 through 1975, Senator Goodman served as the Chairman of the New York State Charter Revision Commission for New York City, which significantly revised City government structure. In 1977, he was the Republican candidate for Mayor of New York City

Father of three and grandfather of three, Senator Goodman received an A.B. degree with Honors from Harvard College in 1951 and a Master's Degree with Distinction from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration in 1953. He received an honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters from Pratt Institute.

Senator Goodman serves on the boards of the Carnegie Hall Corporation, Temple Emanu-El, and M & T Bank Corporation. He is also a member of the Harvard Overseer's Visiting Committee for the John F. Kennedy School of Government and a Fellow for Life of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Additionally, he is President of the Goodman Family Foundation, a philanthropic trust. Senator Goodman will continue to play significant role in public life as CEO and President of the United Nations Development Corporation. I look forward to working with him in his new capacity.

In recognition of his many outstanding achievements, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring State Senator Roy M. Goodman. Senator Goodman's years of devoted public service shine as a model for us all.

HONORING SAN MARCOS HIGH SCHOOL

HON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES  $Monday,\ April\ 29,\ 2002$

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay honor to the San Marcos High School "We the People . . . the Citizen and the Constitution" team from San Marcos, Hays County, Texas.

Under the exemplary leadership of Paula Wolking and Lezlie Wiederhold, the 2001-2002 Calhoun High School team placed second in the statewide competition held on January 5, 2002, at the University of Texas Law School in Austin, Texas, which was hosted by the State Bar of Texas. The team included the following 29 seniors: Kelli Avila, Jason Baen, Marisa Bell-Metereau. Erin Blum. Paul Buntvn. Mariah Campbell, Amy Carlson, John David Samantha Charleston, Justyn Carson. Contreras, Heather Davis, Jacob Delgado, Veronica De La Garza, Matt Diaz, Shelby Eastland, Jessica Gifford, Megan Hansen, Kari Howe, J R Manrique, Rachel Martin, Genesis McCoo, Jenny Morrison, Lani Ogle, Valerie Perez, Amara Richardson, Orlando Sanchez, Francesca Scanio, Kim Spire, and Joshua

The "We the People" program was begun in 1987, with the goal of enhancing students' understanding of the institutions of American constitutional democracy, while guiding them to discover modern day applications of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. It is a time consuming study requiring many hours of preparation, both in and out of the classroom. Each participant takes a multiple-choice test, and prepared for a simulated Congressional hearing in which students "testify" before a panel of judges.

Following a prepared five-minute presentation covering specific topics demonstrating their knowledge and understanding of constitutional principals, the judges quizzed the students with thought-provoking questions pertaining to their subject. The students took and defended their positions, using both historic and contemporary examples.

I am proud to have these students in the 14th Congressional District of Texas. I am proud of the commitment to excellence and perseverance shown by each student. I am proud of the support shown by the parents and volunteers which helped them reach their goal

I trust all my colleagues join me in congratulating the 2001–2002 "We the People . . . the Citizen and the Constitution" team on their second place win in state competition.

CHILD CUSTODY PROTECTION ACT

HON. SAM GRAVES

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 29, 2002

Mr. GRAVES. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 476, the Child Custody Protection Act, is an important measure that Congress should pass and allow President Bush to sign. Transporting minors across State lines for abortions to circumvent State parental involvement laws is a widespread problem in our country.

In this Country we, as citizens, do not allow our minor children to drive a car, to buy alcohol, or cigarettes, or even to vote. How can we as parents allow minor children to travel across certain State lines to obtain an abortion, without parental consent?

The purpose of the Child Custody Protection Act is twofold. The first is to protect the health and safety of young girls by preventing valid and constitutional State parental involvement laws from being circumvented. This is not a Federal parental involvement law. This plainly
